MISCELLANEOUS.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, drowsiness and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.
As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I have never seen anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced. It seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

JOHN BULL ON ITS WAY WEST.

The Triumphant Passage of an Old Engine
Through New Jersey.

The first locomotive that ever drew a railroad train in America, the John Bull, left the Jersey City station of the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:10 Monday morning bound for Chicago.
Behind it were two passenger coaches having on board a party of guests.

The crew that handled the train had been selected from the veterans of the service. It consisted of W. T.
Bailey, who has been on the road since 1859; "Gigtop" Brakeman Jonas Hager, who was appointed in 1849; Rear Brakeman Thomas Gallagher, who first served in the same capacity in 1849; Fireman John W. Sanford, who began his railroad career in 1855; and Engineer A. E. Herbert, who held the same place on old John Bull early in the fifties.

The engine John Bull was brought to this country by Robert L. Stevens in 1831, and in 1833 it began to run regularly on the Camden and Amboy railroad. In the sixties the old engine was side tracked at Bordentown, N. J. It remained there until placed on exhibition at the centennial exposition at Philadelphia, after which it was returned to Bor-downtown, where it remained until 1883, when the Pennsylvania railroad company secured it and gave it to the United States to be placed on exhibition in the National museum at Washington.

One of the passenger coaches was used as a chicken coop by a farmer near South Amboy, and the other was found several years ago covered with rubbish in a New Jersey lumber yard.

The queer train was an object of interest to thousands of people who lined the tracks from Jersey City to Philadelphia. In every town it passed through the houses were decorated with bunting and flags, and nearly every inhabitant was at the station.

Thousands of school children, to whom a holiday was given in order that they might see the train, were massed along the tracks in the different towns on the route, and the cheers of the shrill young voices could be plainly heard above the rumble of the train.

At Princeton about 500 students took possession of the train for about 15 minutes, making the old cars ring with their college cry. When the train was released by them, they covered the track so thickly with money to be munched by the wheels for souvenirs that the engine could hardly move the train over it. This was kept up by the people all along the line.

From Jersey City to Trenton, the entire width of the state, the train ran more or less on coins. These coins ranged from pennies to $2.50 and $5 gold pieces. At Trenton the rails were covered with all sorts of coins for a distance of nearly 300 yards. As the train ran slowly along a crowd of men and boys followed it on a run, and reaped a good harvest by snatching up the more valuable coins before their owners could reach them. Three young Princeton students, who had three pretty maidens with them, only succeeded in finding two out of the six $5 gold pieces they had carefully laid on the rail near their feet. In half an hour battered pennies, nickels, and 10-cent pieces were selling on the streets of Trenton at from 30 cents to $1 each.

Owing to various delays it was 6:35
p. m. when the train entered the Broad street station in Philadelphia, 1 hour and 15 minutes behind the schedule time.

The coming of John Bull and the two antique green cars which had attracted so much attention on the route had been announced in the evening papers, and by the time the train arrived in the station there were 10,000 men, women and children struggling to see it.

The entire time occupied by the run from Jersey City to Philadelphia was 7 hours and 35 minutes—New York Sun.

Glass Eyes.
The earliest notice of artificial eyes I am acquainted with occurs in a very rare work by the French surgeon, Ambrose Pare, entitled "La Methodo Curative des Playes et Fractures de la Tete Humaine," Paris, 1561. Pare gives a description and figures of artificial eyes to be worn in cases where the eyeball has given way and all the humors have escaped.
They are to be segments of a hollow sphere, made of gold, coated with enamel painted in natural colors.
With the exception of the gold, they are exactly like the eyes in use at the present time, which are made wholly of glass.—Notes and Queries.

He Lacked Tact.

"Gentlemen," said an indignant passenger on a Third Avenue car, "will none of you get up and give this old lady a seat?" "I'll thank you, sir," snapped the lady, "to attend to your own affairs. I am not so old as you are by 20 years, if I am any judge of a person's age." The indignant passenger got off at the next station.—Texas Siftings.

For the Love of the Lord.
"Do you live here?" By Jove! I should think so. I don't know what possession must drive you mad.

it. Got a baby inside there—teeth

MATHEMATICAL REVELATIONS.

How a Telephone Girl Induced Unseen Admirers to Disclose Their Ages.

Ting-a-ling-a-ling.
The office boy went into the telephone box and held the receiver to his ear, as he had done numberless times before. In fact, most of his time was spent in the box—what doing nobody knew, but presumably transmitting poetry and love songs to the ear at the other end.

"Hello!"

"Say, Oscar, are you busy?"

She knew his voice well by this time and needed no assurance that she was talking to the right person.
Her verbal familiarity is strong proof of their telephonic intimacy.

"No, I'm never busy only when I'm talking to you. Go ahead. What is it, Maude?"

"Do you want me to tell your fortune? Will you do as I dictate?"

"I'd do anything you say, Maude!
I'd die for you."

"Well, take the date of your birth."

"Yes, it's—"

"Don't tell me. Hold it in your mind for future operations."

"Yes, go ahead."

"Wait a minute," and she tore herself away to attend to the vociferous cries of some impatient subscriber.

"Better these old cranks!" from the sweet fairy as she returned to her engrossing pastime. "You've got that number?"

"Yes."

"Well, double it, add five, multiply by 50."

"Wait a minute," and he figured it out with a pencil on paper.

"Yes, I've got it."

"Now add your age and be sure you do it right."

Silence for a moment while the ponderous machinery of his intellect computed the sum. Then:

"Yes, I've got that."

"Now give me the total."

Poor, unsuspecting young mortal!
Promptly came the answer:

"Four hundred and sixty-eight."

"What!" with a suddenness so terrific as to jar the bell. Then in a softer tone: "Oh, you dear little thing, I thought you were older than 18. What makes your voice so gruff?
Does your mamma know you're out?
and compliments of a like nature by the yard."

Perfectly nonplussed, the individual of whose powdered hair while over the situation and at length arrived at the solution of his perplexity. She had wanted to ascertain the age of the person who was making love to her and had used her woman's clever wit to effect her purpose.
That she succeeded admirably is clearly shown by the above true tale.
Nor was Oscar the only fly caught in the trap of her trickery. Her whole circle of electric lovers, with one exception, were outwitted by the same foxy method. Some were too young and others were too old to suit her, and she has relinquished them all and remains true only to the "exception," whom she shall regard as smarter than herself.—New York Herald.

Lowell's Life at College.

"In the pleasant surroundings of his boyhood James Russell Lowell went to college, enjoyed the Hasty pudding club," says Professor Charles Eliot Norton, "was made its secretary, and wrote a good many poems, and liked the reading of verse better than he did the learning of his lessons, and liked better to read in the alcove of the old library."

"He was apparently lazy and did not do his college work, and toward the end of the senior year he was sent to Concord. It was a source of great regret to him because he was class poet, and he was forbidden to come back to read his class poem to his fellow students on class day. It was in 1848 that he seemed to have come to the high tide of his power. In this year he wrote most of the first series of 'Biglow Papers,' which everybody knows to be so bright and animated."

The Original Proprietor of a Slave.

Chief Justice Theophilus Herrington was the judge who decided against a Virginia slave owner seeking to arrest an escaped slave in Vermont because he could not show title from the original proprietor. The Virginia offered in evidence a deed from the owner of the miller of the slave. The judge said that it was worthless because it was not an original proprietor's deed.

"Who then is the original proprietor," asked the master, "if not the owner whose slave he was born?"
"The Almighty, sir," sternly answered the judge. "Heor his grantee can have an order from this court to return a man to slavery. None other can."—"Chittenden's Personal Reminiscences."

A Clever Reply.

Of Bright Mr. Torrens records a very characteristic remark. When Frederic Lucius, his brother-in-law, had joined the Roman Catholic church, Bright asked:

"Well, Frederic, how is your new superstition?" and was met with the reply, "Better, John, I think than the old hypocrisy."—London Avon-don.

BARBAROUS BARBERS.

Strange Hairdressing Customs Among the Tribes of Central Africa.

During the hot hours of midday, when all active labor is suspended in the village, the natives, urged by vanity and national pride, devote a great deal of time to the arrangement of their old but elaborate toilets. Hairdressing is one of the principal obligations and constitutes one of the numerous domestic duties allotted to the "fair" sex. On a red mat spread out in some shady corner the woman sits down, and the man upon whom the operation is to be performed reclines at full length, resting his head in her lap.

She begins at once to unplait his hair and soon has it all raveled, and then, with a coarse wooden instrument resembling the head of a child's toy rake, she combs it thoroughly until it is clear of all entanglements and stands out all over the head in a thick, bushy mass six or seven inches deep. It is now generously greased with oil from the palm nut. The woman then parts it off into sections, and very soon the coarse bunch of hair, cleverly manipulated by her nimble fingers, is woven down closely to the head.
They display a great deal of ingenuity in forming a variety of designs.

Sometimes a series of little plaited strands, like rat tails, hang in a fringe all around the head. Often solid plaits of hair about the size of a goat's horn are made to stand out from the head in different styles.
Two of these will appear sprouting from the top of the head, or one will drop over the forehead and lie along the nose. A very popular fashion is to have a roll of hair along each side of the head, ending in two solid plaits, which curl over each cheek like sheep's horns. Both men and women have the hair treated in the same way.

The plaiting operation is also extended to the man's beard. The mustache is removed, and so are the eyebrows, with a razor, which is a small cheese cutler blade with a long, slender handle. This is used somewhat as we hold a pen, and the stubbly hair is really chiseled off the face, no small amount of it being dragged out by the roots. Tribal custom compels its removal, and the African is so insensible to pain that the means employed do not inconvenience him in the least. Often when undergoing this treatment he falls asleep and never betrays any discomfort.—E. J.
Glave in Harper's Young People.

Organs Lost by Disuse.

It is a suggestive fact not always sufficiently considered that "as soon as any organ or faculty falls into disuse it degenerates and is finally lost altogether." Through all the ages that man has had the power of speech this power has not been fixed in us in any degree whatever by heredity.
It is regarded as definitely proved that if a child of civilized parents were brought up in a desert place and allowed no communication whatever with man it would never make any attempt at speech.

Up to the last century it was not uncommon to find persons living in a wild state in the woods and forests of England, France, Germany and Russia, who were utterly incapable of speech, though they could make sounds in imitation of the cries of wild animals. Certain parasite insects have so completely degenerated that they possess neither eyes, legs, heads, mouths, stomachs nor intestines.—Leisure Hour.

Pearl Colored Glass Beads.

Venice owes the accumulation of great wealth from a new industry to one of her natives named Joquin. It was in the year 1556 that he observed that the scales of a fish called the bluish possessed the property of giving a milky hue to water. After experimenting with it, he discovered that when beads were dipped into it and then dried they assumed the appearance of pearls. This covering, however, was easily worn away, and successive experiments led to the manufacture of hollow glass beads, all blown separately, then polished in revolving cylinders, and finally coated inside with the beady liquid, the latter being protected with wax.
This branch of industry is carried on in Venice to this day.—Boston Herald.

Diamonds For Every Man.

"Do you know that when your shoes glisten with a polish they are really covered with diamonds?" asked a shoemaker the other day of one of his patrons. "This is true," he continued, "and I will show you why.
Bonedust, which is the principal ingredient of shoeblacking, is almost pure carbon. The diamond, you know, is the purest form of carbon.
When this paste has been smeared over your shoes, the friction of the polishing brush crystallizes the blacking and converts it into millions of infinitesimally small diamonds and every man with a shine on his shoes may revel in the knowledge that he wears a cluster of diamonds on his feet."—Philadelphia Record.

The Death of a Hotel Keeper.

Colonel T. B. B. of Boniface, died, as probably he would have chosen to die, of indigestion. He was the most famous of New England landlords, and many a fine pair of legs has grown tremulous under the deal tables at Point Shirley.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The following have been elected officers of Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N. S. G. W., for the ensuing term, which commences July 1st: Past-President, G. A. Goess; President, Peter G. Keil; 1st Vice-President, Geo. Engler; 2nd Vice, O. W. Geriecke; 3rd Vice, L. H. Green; Secretary, Geo. Breitenbach; Treasurer, G. S. Harris; Marshal, Thos. H. Ellis; Trustee, J. E. Poppe.

The descriptive piece entitled "Nigger in the Barnyard," to be rendered by the band at the Grand Concert, is the most comical piece ever written. The audience would be well repaid if this were the only piece on the programme. This funny old nigger raises a grand disturbance in the barnyard and if persons whose "funny bone" is well developed don't have hysterics it won't be the nigger's fault.

Cesar Galli, the convicted Italian knife-wielder, has applied to the Superior Court for a new trial and he is apt to get it, too. The grounds upon which lawyer Rodgers, the prisoner's attorney, bases his claim are very strong ones. It appears that one of the jurors, Fowler by name, had a small copy of the Penal Code with him and when the twelve jurors retired to render their verdict Mr. Fowler got out his little book and commenced to expound the law to his fellow jurors. He read from the Code what constitutes a reasonable doubt and usurped the functions of District Attorney Seawell and Judge Dougherty—in short he aspired to be Judge, jury and executioner all in one. This little episode coming to the ears of Mr. Rodgers, claiming that the offending juror's action was prejudicial to Galli. Judge Dougherty has taken the matter under advisement.

The members of the Sonoma Valley Band are intending to make a big success of the Grand Concert to be given June 23rd, as neither time, pains or money have been spared in preparing a programme that would be a credit even to San Francisco. The playing of the band will be right up to the "top notch," while the musicians who have been engaged to assist are professionals of the highest rank. The expense of giving such an entertainment is very heavy, and the people of the valley should show that they appreciate the efforts of the band to give them first-class music right here at home. A full and enthusiastic house is certainly due the band on this occasion.

Good accommodations at the Sonoma House. C. F. Rodin, proprietor.

THE CARRIGER WILL CASE.

Verdict of the Jury Set Aside by Judge Crawford.

On Monday last the Carriger will case, which was tried by a jury in the Superior Court of this county several months ago and a verdict rendered in favor of the widow Mrs. Carriger (nee Kate O'Brien), again came up for a rehearing before Judge Crawford, who after hearing argument of counsel on both sides, set the verdict of the jury aside. As the matter now stands Solomon Carriger is the administrator of the estate of his deceased brother Wm. Carriger, and will go ahead and wind up the affairs of the estate unless the widow, who also seeks to act in the same capacity, appeals to the Supreme Court. In that case there will be further delay. It will be recollected that Wm. Carriger, when he died, left his entire estate, valued at about $15,000, to his brothers and sisters, the same being separate property, having been inherited from his mother. At the time of the death of her husband, the widow was seeking a divorce from the deceased, to whom she had been married less than a year. Hence her suit to break the will and to oust Solomon Carriger as the administrator of his brother's estate.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Walter Bordwell Has Not Been Heard of for a Week.

Walter Bordwell, a young married man formerly of this place, but for the past two years a resident of San Francisco, where he conducts a livery stable at 42 Clay street, left his home last Sunday morning for his place of business and nothing has since been seen or heard of him, and it is feared that he has met with foul play. His family on Thursday last reported his disappearance to the police of that city, who are actively engaged in searching for some clue as to what has befallen him. Walter Bordwell is related by marriage to several families in this valley and is an excellent young man. He is a Native Son and while residing here took quite an active part as a member of Sonoma Parlor of which he is a Past President.

Dedication of the New Methodist Church.

Sunday last was a day to be marked with white chalk in the annals of local Methodism. Hitherto its members were content with a primitive building—albeit a building with a history—in a remote nook. At Christmas, however, James McMackin generously donated a lot in the heart of town, where to the new minister, H. C. Mohn, contractor, architect, preacher, all in one, moved the old structure. And behold, now a singularly artistic chapel, crowned with a picturesque spire, wherein people may worship "in the beauty of holiness." The handiwork of Harvey Shaw eminently helped to secure this attractive result. A church, too, without incubus of debt, the balance of $300 having been generously subscribed at this dedication. In the morning a brilliant audience listened to Dr. Dilley's eloquent apology for the sanctuary. Among those present was Pastor Chase of Sonoma Congregational Church. In the evening the venerable Dr. Briggs expounded the dogma of the Atonement. A choir of tuneful folks discoursed appropriate songs of Zion, Miss Shaw presiding at the organ. A handsome memorial window adorns the church, the gift of Mrs. James McMackin, and another will soon be in place in honor of the late Judge Shattuck, to whom pathetic reference was made at the evening service by Rev. J. King of Napa. After a while, carpeted and cushioned, this little chapel will be an ideal temple of worship. Pastor Mohn is seconded by a staff of workers, and we augur for the "living church" a bright future.

Serious Accident.

On Friday afternoon of last week while C. W. Englebert, the well-known butcher, was on his way from town to his temporary slaughter house on the Engler farm, he was thrown from his horse and had three of his ribs broken. Although the accident occurred early in the afternoon the injured man did not realize that he had been sufficiently hurt to require the services of a physician until about nine o'clock in the evening when Dr. Walliser was sent for. An examination disclosed the seriousness of Mr. Englebert's injuries, who at once took to his bed and he is still confined to his home under the care of his doctor, who expects his patient to be as well as ever in a short time.

"Princess" of the Sonoma Stock Farm To the Front.

Senator Jas. G. Fair's Sonoma Stock Farm, located three miles south of town, has again distinguished itself. This latter occasion was on Thursday of last week at the Bay District track, San Francisco, when "Princess," a five-year-old gray mare, driven by Crofiroth, who has charge of the Senator's trotters, won two straight heats in a mile trotting race in which five horses were entered. The time made was 2:19 1/4 and 2:20 1/4, the fastest time that has ever been made by a Sonoma Valley horse.

In a few years Senator Fair's stock farm will be one of the most noted on the Coast. It is less than two years ago since he located in this valley, but already over $25,000 has been spent in building houses, barns, training stables, a private race track and making many other improvements on his farm, but this amount will be only a drop in the bucket to what the expenditures will be in the next few years in improving this model stock farm. Most of this money has been disbursed in this town and valley and has helped to make business lively. The farm, which is located on the rising ground which skirts the valley on the south, is admirably located, and there is probably no spot in the State that enjoys better natural advantages for stock breeding, and we predict that in the course of a few years the Sonoma Stock Farm will surpass all others in the number and fleetness of its trotters.

In addition to Senator Fair's farm several others have been located in this place within the past two years most notably among the latter being those of J. B. Chase and W. H. Graves, both of whom in addition to owning a large number of racing animals, have spent large sums of money on their places.

The City Trustees.

At the City Trustees meeting last Wednesday evening very little business of importance was transacted. The members present were Trustees Trudgen, Schocken, Litzius and Seipp.

The plans of J. B. Small for a new city hall, which were adopted at a previous meeting, were on motion of Trustee Litzius, rejected and after a short discussion, the order adopting them was rescinded.

Two hundred feet of curbing, on motion of Trustee Seipp, was ordered to be laid on First-street East from the Postoffice lot to and beyond the new Methodist Church.

J. E. Poppe, foreman of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Company, waited upon the Board and in a short address urged that the city pay the State and County poll tax for the active members of the company, many of whom were poor men earning less than $2 per day.

Upon motion of Trustee Schocken the following resolution bearing upon the subject was carried:

Resolved, That whenever a member of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Company shall apply to this Board and shall produce a certificate signed by the Secretary of said company of his good standing, together with a receipt for State and County poll taxes the sum of $2 shall be refunded to him by the city.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:
D. Valente, labor $21.00
F. Breitenbach, supplies 5.90
F. Clewe & Co., supplies 4.39
Wm. Green, lumber 9.92
F. Duhring, supplies 3.90
R. B. Lyon, blacksmithing 7.75
G. W. Sparks, salary 15.00
P. Bacalla, labor 38.00
Wm. Linehan, sprinkling 8.00
H. H. Granice, printing 22.50

A Valuable Mine.

A. D. Manuel of this place, brother of H. C. Manuel, the basalt block contractor, sent to San Francisco, last Wednesday, a quantity of gold and silver ore to be assayed by an expert assayer. The mine from which the specimens were taken is located on Mr. Manuel's ranch near Calistoga, one of the veins being over twenty-five feet in width. Specimens of the silver ore, which very much resembles that taken from the great Comstock lode in Virginia City, fairly sparkle with the precious metal. At the present time Mr. Manuel is engaged in sinking a shaft on his mine and has reached a depth of eight or ten feet.

You can preserve shoe soles by melting together tallow and common resin in the proportion of two parts of the former to one part of the latter and apply the preparation hot to the soles of the boots or shoes, as much of it as the latter will absorb. One farmer declares that this receipt alone has been worth more than five dollars.

All housekeepers should know that sugar boiled with an acid, if it be but three minutes, will be converted into glucose, which is the form of sugar found in sweet apples. One pound of sugar has as much sweetening power as two and a quarter pounds of glucose. In other words one pound of sugar stirred into the fruit after it is cooked and while yet warm will make the fruit as sweet as two and a quarter pounds added while the fruit is boiling.

It has been suggested to us by many farmers and business men residing in Sonoma Valley that if the officials of the San Francisco and North Pacific railroad would issue books of commutation tickets containing 15 tickets to cost $10 that it would be a great accommodation to those who are already regular patrons of the road besides it would induce many others to purchase a $10 book that now do not feel like paying out a great big $20 gold piece for the books now sold containing 30 tickets. We feel sure that the present officials will consider this proposition.

The Wearing of Rails.

The latest practice in the economy of rolling stock on railways is to turn the cars at the end of each trip, whereby a large percentage of extra wear and tear is saved. Some years ago a portion of the Wabash railroad was laid with old English iron rails and a small part with steel rails from the Carnegie mills. It became necessary after a time to remove some of the main line rails to another part of the road, and it was observed that after relaying them many gave out immediately, while others manifested no signs of wear.

To determine the reason of this apparently unaccountable condition an investigation was ordered, which showed that the road from which the rails had been removed was built in a northwest-southeast direction, and in relaying a large number had been turned end for end. Those that had not been so placed exhibited no additional loss by attrition, while the turned rails succumbed in from 80 to 90 days. The conclusion arrived at was that the metal had become polarized from long use when first laid, and that the fiber was broken up by the traffic in the opposite direction.

It was further proved that cast iron wheels generally yielded twice the mileage when the cars were turned at each end of the journey than when they were run backward and forward without reversing. Notwithstanding the value of this discovery, it was not universally utilized, and it is only recently that some of the American railroads have begun to recognize its importance.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Administration Well Distributed.

"I never see a man ride a bicycle without mentally raising my hat to him," said Luke Cross, who is at the Laclede. "It looks so easy and seems to come to a man so naturally that when I was advised to ride to get rid of dyspepsia I purchased a machine and had it sent home. Every evening for a month I tried to learn to ride it, and the advice I had tendered me from neighbors on the other side of the fence was sufficient to have educated a man in almost any art or science under the sun. But it failed to teach me how to ride the machine, as did the salesman who had guaranteed that I could ride anywhere in a week. By the time I had cut my face twice and skinned the backs of my hands and the fronts of my shins, I gave it up and sold the machine at half price to my next-door neighbor. He had about learned the trick by watching my failures, and his graceful riding is a constant reproach to me. But I still affirm the fact is not so easy as it looks."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

London is center—ago, soul—of the British empire, and England without the metropolis is "Hasslet" minus the Prince of Denmark.

The traveler who whisks into this vastest of human hives, with 10,000,000 of inhabitants, cannot be anything but a profoundly impressed spectator.

London contains one-eighth of Great Britain's population, has a larger daily delivery of letters than all Scotland, a birth every four minutes, a death every six, and the lord mayor, "prince of merchants," holds passing sway over a greater number of his fellow mortals than the king of Holland.

Though this miniature world numbers more Jews than Palestine, more Italians than Rome, more Germans than Hanover, it remains an Anglo-Saxon city.—S. P. Cadman in Geo.

A Woman's Lurching Sedan.

A man has opened a woman's lurching room in Boston in one of the busiest sections on a novel plan, at least for this country. A large table in the center of the room is attractively set out with a good variety of food suitable for a wholesome, palatable, inexpensive luncheon. Coffee and tea are provided, and comfortable chairs with a projecting arm upon which to rest cup and plate stand about. The customer selects her luncheon, waiting upon herself, pours her beverage, and withdrawing to a chair eats it. Afterward the lady, who she considers a suitable price, the matter being left to her sense of honor.—New York Times.

An Economical Trip.

Two girls who went to Europe by themselves last year and saw some of the beauty of that continent, spent two weeks in London, three in Paris, went through to Genoa, did some Alpine climbing and saw the prettiest Swiss towns, went to Germany, down the Rhine, and to Brussels and Amsterdam, spent just $250, including every expense. Their trip lasted three months and included 20 places. They always went to a hotel, had all day wanted and saw everything they desired. And yet all tradition agrees that women are extravagant.—New York Sun.

Easy Enough.

Stella's papa had been talking with a gentleman while Stella and Charlie were present. After the gentleman had gone Stella asked, with a puzzled expression, "Charlie, what's a draftsman?" "Pooh," was the lordly answer, "don't you know that? A draftsman is a man that sits in a draft."

JAY GOULD BY HIS PORTRAIT PAINTER

Observations of His Character by Hubert Fickman.

I see that Jay Gould is dead. I painted him while I was in America in 1883, and I have been wondering if some notes on my knowledge of him would be interesting now.

He declined to sit at first, but when a friend of mine told him he had made a mistake in refusing to sit to me said, "Oh, what do you know about him?" When assured that I was a safe man, he offered to visit my studio and see this friend's portrait. He spoke little at that visit, only really asking what the portrait would cost and how long it would take to do. These questions being answered satisfactorily he said, "I guess I'll be done," and we arranged the sittings.

Fifteen minutes before the last sitting was over he said: "You have still a quarter of an hour according to our agreement. Shall you get done?" "Yes," I said, for I knew my man and took good care to be well ahead of time. He was satisfied with the result, but I am sure he was more impressed by my having been "on time" than by the artistic value of the work.

During the sittings he conversed easily and readily about his accomplished deeds.

Jay Gould probably never before or since his sittings allowed himself to be looked at as I was obliged to look at him for my painting. I had him in strong light, while I was in shadow. This order of position it was his study to reverse in life. I saw painful expressions pass over his face as of deep-seated troubles lingering in his mind, and it is a fact that he never came to the sittings without a detective following him.

He had a happy knack of thinking of methods for bringing to justice people who tried to injure him, which was well illustrated by an incident of which he told me. Having received some letters threatening his life, and as these letters were always posted in New York, he arranged to have all the pillars of the city watched, and when a letter was dropped into one of them it was taken out at once and examined. It was in this way a costly way indeed, but he ran to ground the person who wrote them.

When others wondered where his power lay, as there was so little outwardly to indicate his great ability in certain directions, I felt the true index was his fine fiber and sensitive nervous system.

Undoubtedly he was a student of human nature and based his operations on his judgment of men, more than on his judgment of events.—London Telegraph.

An Old Man's Story.

"When I was in Italy," said Frank Wallace, a staff of curiosity took me to the Tiber. It was a beautiful old place, and filled with the spirit of the dead past to keep you guessing for months. While I was there I saw a dead man in a long black robe sitting on a bench, and I was attracted to the sight hanging from the front door of a physician's office. It was a wonder in its way, plain but not ugly, and set forth the man's ideas of business in a way that could not be mistaken. I can go on with it, that I made a copy of it. This is how it reads: "Professor Ricci, the safe Professor Ricci will use for his services in making them live and large, serpents, wolves, bears, monkeys, marmots, weasels and numerous other wild animals, alive and in good condition."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Two and Street Car Cases.

Tuesday afternoon an electric car started for Covington. Every seat was taken. At Third street a woman weighing probably 200 pounds got in. A small man got up and offered her his seat. The woman weighed probably 125 pounds. The woman looked at the small man and then at her own figure. Then she glanced at her own figure. She thanked the man and said she would stand. The man then stood up and she instantly sat down. He then occupied the space that had accommodated the woman, and the woman next to her was uncomfortably crowded. One of the men went on the back platform and mumbled something about his people paying double fare and little people half fare.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
